Y-KNOTTERS BELIEVE IT OR KNOT

You are the Knotty Line

HANGOVER BREAKFAST- Thanks to Richard and Betty for having the hangover breakfast this year. There were about 25 people there. I didn't hear anyone moaning or see anyone holding their heads in pain from the night before. Richard did an excellent job cooking the eggs and the other breakfast foods. The shrimp, deli plates, sloppy Joes, pasta salads were also all great. Some games were played and of course Football was on the TV for our die hard football fans. Thanks to the Kordas's for sharing their home and gracious hospitality with us.

Albert's been at it again. He's fishing

Snow birds are starting to pack up and leave us. BYYYYYYYYYEEEEEE! See you back here soon. Everyone have a safe trip.

A few things you can do when the "blizzard hits" and you're grounded. (Does not apply to snow birds)

1. Clean out the tackle box, wondering where some of the contents came from.
2. Repacked the tackle box.
3. Take old mono line off the reels.
4. Put new mono line on the reels.
5. Sew that blouse that you haven't worn in 3 months
6. Quit looking for that blouse you haven't worn in 3 months, you donated it to the Good Will.
7. Toss out all of the piled-up, out dated catalogs from last year.
8. Read the new current catalogs that were starting to pile up.
9. Set aside the current piled up catalogs in case you might want to order something. Thus a new pile begins.
10. Clean out a closet, junk draw, cupboard, vacuum cleaner bag, golf bag, recipe book.
11. Go through recipes; send great ones to Paulette for YKBC Cookbook.
12. Fill the bird feeders.
13. Refill the bird feeders.
14. Re-refill the bird feeders. Trying not to think of the Goldfinches as greedy hogs.
15. Apologize to the Goldfinches after a swarm of Blue Jays move in.
16. Finally, all else done, check to see if the roads are safe enough to get to the local bar/ shopping mall before noon.

NEVER, EVER GO FASTER THEN YOUR GUARDIAN ANGEL CAN FLY!!!
